

BUSINESS VALUATION & LITIGATION SUPPORT PRACTICE

HoganTaylor's Business Valuation & Litigation Support (BVLS) practice group is known for delivering credible and supportable valuation services that help clients ascertain, and substantiate, the worth of their enterprises and intangible assets.

HoganTaylor's BVLS practice group uses a team approach in their valuation process utilizing cross-service disciplines which provide a thorough, three-dimensional perspective with a foundation solid enough to withstand the scrutiny of the court and the taxing authorities.

You can expect HoganTaylor's litigation support team to provide a rigorous analysis, apply nationally recognized, best practice valuation approaches and use current empirical evidence backed by extensive research.

In matters of family law, HoganTaylor's well-trained BVLS team is equipped with all of the valuation and financial analysis skills necessary to provide conclusions that withstand intense review. The BVLS practice has delivered such proven work product in cases that involve analysis of income available for support, identification of separate property and assets, development of marital balance sheets, budgets of living expenses, and many other financial determinations relating to family law.

HoganTaylor has earned an outstanding reputation of integrity and independence in rendering valuation opinions. Consequently, the business valuation team has significant experience presenting their valuation conclusions both in court and with the IRS. Often, members of HoganTaylor's BVLS practice are consulted to review conclusions reached by other experts and to advise as to the validity or weakness of the opinion.
